

One of dozens of delicious offerings at October's Oak Street Po'boy Festival. (©Shawn Fink)

New Orleans Food Festivals to Keep You Satiated Year Round

BY DOUGLAS BRANTLEY ON 11/08/16, UPDATED 11/21/16

New Orleans boasts more than 130 annual festivals, many of them food-focused. Alligator, oysters, gumbo, mirliton—if it's edible, we'll celebrate it. Here, we've mapped out the best the city's food fetes month-by-month. Dig in, y'all!

March

Fêtes Fest & Fêtes des Chefs: Celebrity chef John Besh cooked up Fêtes Fest as an affordable offshoot of his big-ticket/big talent Fêtes de Chefs fundraiser, which takes place the following evening with nationally known culinary talents dishing up intimate dinners in local homes.

Top Taco New Orleans: This offshoot of the popular Top Taco Denver nods to NOLA's growing number of Mexican eateries. Chefs compete in a variety of categories (most creative, most traditional, fan favorite), while area bartenders battle it out for top margarita.